FOREST PROTECTION SPECIALIST

The Agricultural Division of Abbott, an established leader in the production and marketing of biological (not chemical) insect control agents, is expanding into the shadetree and forest market.

The Product: DIPEL, a naturally occurring bacterium specifically toxic to most species of leaf-eating worms, but harmless to all other elements of the environment. Wide acceptance by commercial vegetable growers and extensive tests on such tree pests as gypsy moth and cankerworm indicate excellent market development opportunities.

The Challenge: Work with State and Federal authorities, arborists, distributors, municipalities, and ecology groups to establish field evaluations throughout 4 northeastern states; lay a sound foundation for future full-scale sales; grow with this special-use market as you shape its expansion nationwide and overseas.

The Man: Will have had active involvement in sales and/or development programs in which he played a direct role in educating and motivating diverse groups. Must be an effective and creative communicator. Prefer experience in forestry, entomology and/or ag chemicals.
