Don't ignore this revolution

Buckle up folks, we're in the front-end of a communication revolution that will change the world as we know it. As they say — "You ain't seen nothin' yet."

Friends, there's no overstating the impact that ever-more-incredible advances in communication technology are making in our society, our personal lives and in the way we operate our businesses.

Email. Cellular phones. Instant messaging. Handheld computers. These are today's best production and sales tools. Learn to use them. We don't have a choice. Either ride the crest of the tidal surge of this revolution or be tumbled along in its froth.

Everyone's got one now

The cell phone, a curiosity just a few years ago, is now considered a business necessity. It allows owners and managers to talk to or trade information with their employees, clients, vendors and . . ."Yes, dear I'll pick up some milk on the way home."

That's just the start. The newest generation of electronics are literally portable offices that have more utility than yesterday's room full of phones, faxes and file cabinets — all in a package that you attach to a clip on your belt. Amazingly, they allow you to access the Internet, communicate, schedule your week's activities and even take and send images.

This causes me to recall an interview in 1985 with a California lawn care business owner who saw the direction service delivery industries had to go. I remember the meeting well because I was so impressed with his "state-of-the-art" system.

This owner equipped his fleet of 22 service trucks — white pickup trucks, as I recall — with mobile radios he had purchased from the '84 Los Angeles Olympics. Each time a technician made a service call, he called in the client's address, the time of the stop, the nature of the treatment, the type and amount of product he used, any payment he received and other data I've since forgotten.

A young woman in company headquarters received the information over her two-way radio and immediately inputted the data. Meanwhile, sales people in an adjacent room made cold calls to properties in the immediate vicinity of the technician, offering one-time specials and drumming up additional sales opportunities.

Did his technicians feel uncomfortable about calling in every stop, every treatment, every correspondence with a client? Not at all, he said. They loved the system because it allowed them to be more responsive to clients, treat more properties and, ultimately, earn better wages than technicians at competing companies.

Today's ongoing (and accelerating) communication revolution provides us with incredible access to other people, including our employees and our clients.

Let's learn to use these new tools to offer more responsive service. We owe it to ourselves, our employees and our customers.

Works where wheels won't.

Bobcat Compact Track Loaders

Here's top traction for your toughest tasks. The Bobcat® T190 and T200 loaders dig in to keep you working on soft, wet, even muddy ground where other machines stop dead! Rugged rubber tracks deliver extra traction, superior flotation and greatly reduced ground pressure — as low as 3.8 PSI — along with plenty of pushing power for grading, digging, lifting and loading.

Simply lasts the longest.

Among all broad-spectrum preventive fungicides, Heritage® is the longest-lasting. It works up to 28 days to prevent brown patch and most landscape ornamental diseases. That means fewer applications. And more time for everything else.

MIGHTY. QUIET.

INTRODUCING THE POWERFUL AND SURPRISINGLY QUIET GMC® SIERRA®

Jackhammers. Bulldozers. Impatient foremen. There's enough commotion on the job site without your truck adding to it. So our engineers designed the GMC Sierra to provide some peace and quiet. This impressive pickup offers a choice of incredibly powerful yet surprisingly quiet engines. Like the optional DURAMAX™ 6600 Turbo Diesel V8 that delivers 300 hp @ 3000 rpm and 520 lb-ft torque @ 1800 rpm. It offers exceptionally smooth, quiet operation, thanks to an innovative deep-skirt block design and common rail fuel injection that helps control noise, vibration, and harshness. Even the available Allison® transmission is engineered for smooth shifting and equally quiet operation. The newly redesigned GMC Sierra. You should hear what you're missing. For details, visit gmc.com or call 1-800-GMC-8782.

SEE WHAT YOU'RE MISSING.

INTRODUCING THE ALL-NEW GMC® TOPKICK™

Take a look at the all-new professional grade GMC TopKick. Engineered with a dramatically sloped hood and larger windshield, it gives your drivers an impressive view of what lies ahead, like people and equipment. In fact, the GMC TopKick provides a forward field of vision as near as 13 feet from the front bumper. That's twice as close as its nearest competitor.* Smartly designed with larger fold-in mirrors providing 126 square inches of surface area (including a 6" x 7" convex section), the new GMC TopKick offers a remarkable view all around. Add to that the tightest turning diameter within class 4,* and your drivers can safely maneuver around things like loading docks and garbage dumpsters. Not to mention the competition. For a closer look, visit gmc.com or call 1-800-GMC-8782.

*Based on comparison of 2003 GMC TopKick C4500/C5500 to 2002 Ford F-450/F-550. Excludes other GM® vehicles.

Pest control information and recommendations for turfgrass

These recommendations have been compiled from several sources that were updated this past year, including cooperative extension publications from Cornell, The Ohio State and North Carolina State Universities. Our thanks to the Green Industry programs at these fine universities. Even so, they are still recommendations and may not apply to your area because of state and local regulations. While they indicate active ingredients that have been proven to be effective against particular pests —when used according to label directions and under proper conditions — make sure there are no restrictions on their use in your market. When in doubt, check with Cooperative Extension or with the turfgrass and ornamental experts at your state land grant university.

Always read and follow label directions. When in doubt about a label's intent or the proper or most effective way to use a particular product, contact the manufacturer (use the toll-free number on the label) or visit the manufacturer's Web site.

Grub identification tips

BY PAT VITTUM, PH.D.

Two factors in determining how to control grubs in your turf are: 1. identifying which grubs are attacking your turfgrass, and 2. figuring out how many there are.

To identify grub species, inspect the shape of the anal slit and the pattern of hairs on its posterior. Use a hand lens; it makes the job a lot easier. Next, figure out what the threshold is that grubs must cross before they seriously damage the turf.

The following are some identifying characteristics of each grub species and action thresholds for each. Use this information strictly as a guide. It serves as a way to compare damage potential between species.

Japanese beetles

Identifier: Transverse anal slit and a v-shaped row of spines just in front of the slit, pointing toward the head.

Range: Found east of the Mississippi River and north of central Georgia. They're also beginning to show up in parts of Minnesota and some of the Central Plains.

Action threshold: Six to 15 grubs per sq. ft. in moderately maintained turfgrass.

European chafers

Identifier: Branched anal slit and two almost parallel rows of spines that look like an opening zipper.

Range: Eastern third of Massachusetts, Rhode Island and along the Erie Canal in New York, southern New Hampshire and southern Maine. Other areas of infestation include the shores of the Great Lakes and parts of southern Michigan.

Action threshold: five to 10 grubs per sq. ft.

Oriental beetles

Identifier: A transverse anal slit (like the Japanese beetle) and two almost parallel rows of spines

Range: Coastal New England (including most of Rhode Island and Connecticut), Long Island, eastern New Jersey and parts of Pennsylvania, with populations also reported along the Connecticut River and perhaps into southern Vermont and New Hampshire. Other locations will probably be confirmed through pheromone trapping.

Action threshold: Six to 15 grubs per sq. ft.

Asiatic garden beetles

Identifier: Branched anal slit with a distinct semicircle of spines just in front of the slit.

Range: Throughout the Northeast and Midwest.

Action threshold: 10 to 20 grubs per sq. ft.

Northern and southern masked chafers

Identifier: Transverse anal slit. Spines are scattered with no obvious pattern.

Range: Throughout the Northeast and Midwest but are more common in the Midwest and Plains states.

Action threshold: Eight to 20 grubs per sq. ft.

Green June beetles

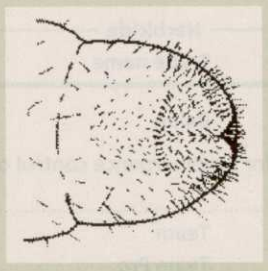
Identifier: Transverse anal slit and two fairly compact parallel rows of spines. These grubs have short legs that aren't used for locomotion.

Range: Eastern U.S., from southeastern New York to Florida and westward to Texas and Kansas.

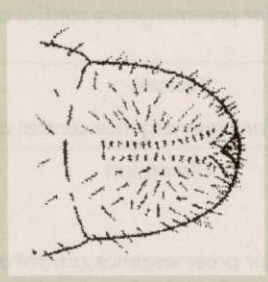
Action threshold: Because the grubs feed more in the thatch and not as much on the roots, thresholds are usually higher than for the direct root-feeding species like the Japanese beetle.

— From the November 2002 issue of Turfgrass Trends. Visit www.turfgrasstrends.com

The raster patterns for common turfgrass grubs:

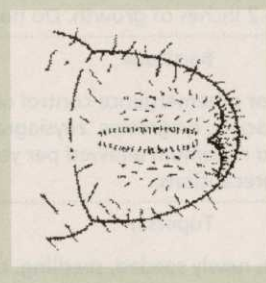


Asiatic garden beetles: Action thresholds are higher than for Japanese beetles (at 10 to 20 grubs per square foot) because they're significantly smaller.

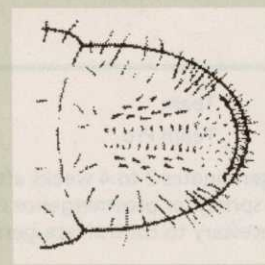


Europe chafers: Action thresholds usually are slightly lower than those for Japanese beetles, at five to 10 grubs per square foot.

Japanese beetles: Action thresholds typically range from six to 15 grubs per square foot in moderately maintained turfgrass.



Green June beetles: Action thresholds are usually a bit higher than for the direct root-feeding species, like the Japanese beetle.



Oriental beetles: Action thresholds typically range from six to 15 grubs per square foot in moderately maintained turfgrass.

CHEMICAL CONTROL OF TURFGRASS WEEDS

ANNUAL GRASSY WEEDS: PREEMERGENCE CONTROL

Weed	Herbicide: Common name	Trade name	Formulation	AI/A
Crabgrass, barnyardgrass, foxtails, panicum	benefin	Balan	25G	2 lb.
	Apply in early spring for preemergence control on mature turfgrass only. May injure bentgrass.
	benefin + trifluralin	Team	2G	2 lb.
	benefin + trifluralin	Team Pro	0.86G	1.5-3.0 lb.
	Apply in early spring for preemergence control on mature turfgrass only.
	bensulide	Betasan	4E	7.5-1.0 lb.
	Apply in early spring for preemergence control on mature turfgrass only.
	*dithiopyr	Dimension	1EC, granular w/fertilizer (several formulations)	0.25-0.5 lb.
	Apply in early spring for preemergence control on established turfgrasses. Tolerant turfgrasses include bluegrasses, fescues, ryegrasses, zoysiagrass, and creeping bentgrass. Length of control is rate dependent. See label for rate suggestions and precautions.
	oxadiazon 2G	Ronstar	2G, 50WP	2-4 lb.
	North - Apply in early spring for preemergence control on mature Kentucky bluegrass, tall fescue, and perennial ryegrass only. South - Apply 2-3 weeks before greenup.
	NOTE: Ronstar 50WP formulation is labeled for Zoysia turf but has injured other cool-season turfgrasses.
	pendimethalin	Pre-M, Halts, Weedgrass control	65DG	1.5-2.0 lb.
	Apply in early spring for preemergence control on mature turfgrass. May also be used on seedling turf with 1 to 2 inches of growth. Do not use on closely cut bentgrass.
	*prodiamine	Barricade	65WG	0.65-0.75 lb.
	Apply in early spring for preemergence control on established turfgrasses. Tolerant turfgrasses include bluegrasses, fescues, ryegrasses, zoysiagrass and creeping bentgrass. Maximum dose for any application and maximum allowed per year vary with turf type. See label for detailed rate suggestions and precautions.
	siduron	Tupersan	4.6%, 50WP	6-12 lb.
	Apply in early spring to newly seeded, seedling, or mature turfgrass for preemergence control. Also effective on young crabgrass seedlings. Use reduced rate, 6 lb./A, on newly seeded turfgrass.
Goosegrass	benefin + trifluralin	Team	2G	3 lb.
	benefin + trifluralin	Team Pro	0.86G	3 lb.
	Goosegrass generally germinates 2 to 4 weeks after crabgrass. Treat later than for crabgrass. Apply in spring for preemergence control on mature turfgrass only. Split applications may be necessary to control late-germinating goosegrass.

Restricted-use pesticide; may be purchased and used only by certified applicators.*

ANNUAL GRASSY WEEDS: PREEMERGENCE CONTROL (CONTINUED)

Goosegrass (continued)	oxadiazon 2G	Ronstar	2G, 50WP	4 lb.
	Apply in spring for preemergence control on mature Kentucky bluegrass, tall fescue, and perennial ryegrass only. NOTE: Ronstar 50WP formulation is labeled for zoysia turf but has injured other cool-season turfgrasses.
	Bensulide + oxadiazon	Scott's Goosegrass/ Crabgrass Control	4E+50WP	6.5+1.5 lb.
	*Dithiopyr	Dimension	1EC	0.5 lb.
	Apply in spring for preemergence control on established turfgrasses. Tolerant turfgrasses include bluegrasses, fescues, ryegrasses, zoysiagrass, and creepingbentgrass.
	Pendimethalin	Pre-M, Halts, Weedgrass Control	60DG 60WP	2 lb. 2 lb.
	Apply in spring for preemergence control on mature turfgrass only. Do not use on closely cut bentgrass. Second application may be necessary to control late-germinating goosegrass.
	*Prodiamine	Barricade	65WDG	0.75 lb.
	Apply in early spring for preemergence control on established turfgrasses. Tolerant turfgrasses include bluegrasses, fescues, ryegrasses and zoysiagrass. More consistent control is obtained by sequential applications of 0.75 lb. followed six weeks later by 0.25 lb. This higher rate required to control goosegrass is not safe on bentgrass. Maximum dose for any application and maximum allowed per year vary with turf type.

ANNUAL GRASSY WEEDS: POSTEMERGENCE CONTROL

Crabgrass, goosegrass, foxtail, barnyardgrass, other summer annual grasses	*dithiopyr	Dimension	1EC	0.38-0.5 lb.
	Postemergent control of young seedling (pretillering) crabgrass but not goosegrass. Addition of 0.25% (by volume) of a nonionic surfactant may improve control. To control tillered crabgrass, dithiopyr may be mixed with Acclaim or MSMA.
	Fenoxaprop	Acclaim Extra	0.57EC	1/8-3/8 lb.
	Apply to actively growing grassy weeds. Use higher rates for larger weeds. Do not tank mix with broadleaf herbicides. See label for other restrictions. Addition of a surfactant is not generally recommended.
	Methanearsonates	MSMA	6.0L, 6.6L, 55WG	2 lb.
	Apply after crabgrass has emerged but before it is large enough to be competitive with desirable turfgrass. Repeat application may be necessary. Does not control goosegrass effectively. May discolor turfgrass. DSMA is also labeled but is used at higher rates.

Restricted-use pesticide; may be purchased and used only by certified applicators.*

Weed	Herbicide: Common name	Trade name	Formulation	AI/A
Annual bluegrass in perennial ryegrass	ethofumesate	Prograss	1.5EC	1-2 lb./A (2/3-1 1/3 gal./A)
	North - Apply in late August or early September to control seedling annual bluegrass. Apply follow-up treatment 30 to 60 days later. Do not exceed 4 lb. AI/A per year. On seedling ryegrass, apply only after ryegrass seedlings are 1 inch tall. South - First app. 30-45 days after overseeding with perennial ryegrass. Second 21-28 days later.
Annual bluegrass in creeping bentgrass	paclobutrizol	Scott's TGR	0.36G	1/3-3/4 lb./A
	For suppression of annual bluegrass and gradual conversion to bentgrass. Use lower rate on sandy soils. Apply in late summer or early fall (no later than October 1 in north) and again in the spring after 100% green-up. Applications when turfgrass vigor is low may result in undesirable levels of discoloration and growth reduction.

5 tips to beat resistance

BY RICH HANRAHAN

Fungicides are valuable turfgrass management tools. To preserve their usefulness, develop a strategy to prevent resistance, which begins to take place when a fungus makes a genetic adjustment or undergoes a mutation that reduces its sensitivity to a particular fungicide. This change allows the affected fungus to survive the fungicide. In time, this surviving organism is likely to become the dominant strain when the same fungicide is used frequently and exclusively with it. It becomes more difficult to control.

It's a class thing

When resistance develops, it's typically not limited to individual chemical compounds. Usually, strains of fungi that have become resistant to a fungicide will be resistant to all fungicides in the same chemical class.

Overexposure to just one fungicide might destroy the usefulness of several.

Here are five quick tips for maintaining the effectiveness of your disease-fighting chemical tools:

1 Mix it up. Use multiple fungicides from different chemical classes with varying modes of action. The two basic approaches are rotation and tank mixing. If a fungus has developed resistance to one of your fungicides, multiple fungicides will increase your odds of ridding turf of the fungus before it has a chance to spread and mutate further.

2 Reduce the frequency. Never make more applications than you absolutely need to achieve control. The fewer applications you make, the less the fungus is exposed to the chemical class.

3 Apply at the right rate. It's extremely important to apply enough product. Cutting the rate used in a single application will increase the likelihood of resistance developing. Observe recommended rates and strive to achieve complete coverage of the plants.

4 Reduce your dependence. Develop a solid Integrated Pest Management approach to disease control. Wherever possible, use plant species and/or varieties that are disease resistant. Keep abreast of the newer varieties entering the market.

5 Fungicide selection. Although a product may be labeled for a particular disease, it doesn't guarantee it will solve your problem. Efficacy can vary from region to region. How do you know which to choose? Consult with an expert such as a turf pathologist or university researcher.

— The author is technical development manager of fungicides for Chipco Professional Products.

Basic resistance info

Here are some points to keep in mind when developing your resistance strategy:

▶ The chemistries of some fungicides are more inclined to provide resistance than others.

▶ Fungi with higher reproductive rates are more likely to develop resistance because they pass on the mutated gene more quickly and broadly.

▶ Site-specific fungicides run a higher risk of resistance because they work by inhibiting just function in the fungal cell. Multi-site fungicides interfere with several vital functions of the fungal cell.

▶ When rotated and used in tank-mix combinations, certain fungicides can effectively control a broad spectrum of diseases without the concern for resistance development.

GRASSHOPPER®

AERA-vator™

- Oscillating, forged-steel tines penetrate and fracture soil on hard-packed, high-traffic areas of sports turf or golf courses.
- Leaves no cores to clean up so turf can be used immediately. Aeration can be done when needed, even during times of peak usage.
- Requires no irrigation prior to aeration; good in dry conditions when other methods intensify evaporation.
- Eliminates glazing; improves permeability in the root zone.
- PTO-driven 40- and 60-inch models available.

Stop Struggling To Get Landscaping Work!

Here's How To Get In On A Special, Two-Day Seminar That Will Increase Your Sales and Profits INSTANTLY!

What's red hot and has money pouring out of it? Water gardens. Yes, water gardens. It's the hottest landscaping trend in the U.S. right now, and customers are breaking open their piggy banks to get one.

Customers Are Spending Freely

In an era when customers are shaking their heads "No" to your landscaping proposals, they are gladly forking over $6,000 and up for a water garden that you and your crew can build in just ONE DAY. How's that for turn around time? Consider the fact that USA Today (July 11, 2002) recently said that "Water gardens are the number1 thing homeowners would add to improve their homes."

Customers Want Water Gardens

Whether it's back to nature, more quality time with the family, or simply the fact that it greatly increases property values, consumers are interested in water gardens. And with mortgage rates at an all-time low, customers are willing to invest their money in water gardens.

Everyone's Talking About Them

Water gardens are the talk of the town right now. Oprah has mentioned them a time or two on her show. Kathy and Judy on WGN are talking about them. Home and Garden TV (HGTV) is also always talking about them.

Why You May Not Have Acted Yet

You may already know that water gardens are a red-hot trend right now. But you have not acted because you may have also heard about . . .

The HORROR STORIES

Water Gardens can be a beautiful sight to behold, but they can also be a nightmare to service and to maintain. The Wall Street Journal recently published an article about all the horror stories and headaches that water garden owners were encountering. Even the nationally syndicated cartoon ZITS has recently spoofed the water gardening industry All of this may have given you second thoughts. It may have made you pull back on the reins, and say, "Something's not right here." Well, you are absolutely right. To tell you the truth …

Not All Water Gardens Are Created Equal

Whenever there's a hot trend, you have some dedicated, loyal companies turning out high quality, well-engineered products. Then you have the other guys who are bandaging junk together, just to say they have a product on the market. So, who do you trust? Who do you invest your time with?
