TWEETY SOARS

Morse, meet Twitter, your telegram technology replacement.

Twitter is the world's new e-telegram, says digital marketing guru Jon Wuebben, who spoke at the Turf and Ornamental Communicators Association's (TOCA's) recent 20th anniversary meeting in San Juan, Puerto Rico.

Wuebben points out that when US Airways flight 1549 crashed into New York's Hudson River Jan. 15, twitter.com broke the news first thanks to a tweet (a microblog of 140 or fewer characters) by one of the passengers on the plane.

Twitter is no stranger to scoops — or crashes. Just a few weeks before the Hudson River incident, passenger Mike Wilson (login "2drinksbehind") tweeted his first-hand account of Continental flight 737 veering off a runway in Denver and catching fire. Wilson's initial tweet on the accident comprised less than 50 characters, yet virtually managed to seat people throughout the world right beside him on flight 737: "Holy fing st - I wasb-just in a plane crash!"

Thirty-three minutes later, another tweet showed Wilson's fear dissipating (no typos were made; no censorship was needed), as his logic and humor resurfaced: "This was crash #2 for me. Maybe I should start taking the bus."

Armed with just a cell phone, any tweeter in the right place at the right time (or in this case, in the wrong place at the wrong time) can scoop a pack of reporters. Twitter is easier and faster than blogging, and uploading photos is a snap. It's better for readers, too: "It's immediate, unfiltered and free," Wuebben adds.

"Twitter, Facebook and YouTube complete the SMO — Social Media Optimization — technology triumvirate," Wuebben says. "If you want to be 'in' — to really know things and be known — you better be 'there.'" — MW

Part of the numbers game favoring digital marketing involves the proliferation of print directories. More than 120 publishers sell ads for a combined more than 7,000 local reference books. Swano and other landscape contractors say consumers' cabinets are stuffed with so many business directories that it's much easier to surf online for services than try and open the bulging Pandora's box.

Dave Flannery, owner of Big Creek Landscapes in Alpharetta, GA, canceled the company's print business-directory advertising in 2005 and doesn't regret it.

digital marketing. In past work lives, he held various sales-and-marketing positions with technology giants Compuware and Peregrine Systems. Now, he's focused on reinventing Big-CreekLandscapes.com.

"We're updating our Web site because many of the portfolio photos we're showcasing are a few years old, and in our line of work nothing quite sells like a few great before-and-after shots, coupled with customer testimonials," Flannery says. "There are several phases to reinventing ourselves online and becoming a true destination site rather than just an electronic brochure."

For example, Flannery wants to add an online shopping cart so the company can tap a new revenue stream — marketing retail items such as pond supplies, fish food and bird houses — while feeding new-business leads to the company's landscape design/build business. Later this year, he plans to launch

Flannery hasn't gone "all in" on digital advertising. He says local glossy print magazines still provide solid returns on his marketing investments.

"You can't showcase your landscape work in those yellow print directories," Flannery says. "The few leads we did get from those ads weren't quality. The people generally were calling us, and three to five other companies, just to obtain the lowest price possible — and that's the kind of business we're not interested in."

Most mix bets

Chepurny and Flannery are atypical. While many professionals are following their lead and moving more marketing dollars to digital venues, most still maintain paid presences in their printed local business directories.

"We cut way back on our Yellow Pages advertising, from a few hundred dollars a month to $60, but we're still in there," Dwyer says. "We get a free one-line listing in one category for being located in the area, and we pay for similar listings under four or five other headings — so we can cover our bets across nursery wholesale and retail, landscape maintenance, design/build and installation."

Printed local directory ads still can help build business. They accounted for 11% of new customers last year for Austin, TX-based Cutting Edge Lawn Care. The Internet, however, draws more new business, says Jerry Tindel, Cutting Edge's office manager who sidelines as its director of marketing.

"Yellow Pages cost us $394.50 for each new client they brought us in the first half of 2009," Tindel says. "The Web cost us just $183.13 for each new customer. Twice as many customers — 23 — came to us through the Web."

Printed local business directories not only still win advertising dollars from Tindel, but they also prompted him and his son, Todd — who founded the business in the eighth grade — to change the company's name.

"When I came aboard in 1994, we changed the business' name from Todd's Lawn Care to Cutting Edge Lawn Care just so we could be among the first lawn care listings in printed local business directories," Tindel adds. "It was the precursor to search engine optimization — have your company name begin with A, B or C."

Most contractors say the Internet will win even more advertising marketshare, but project the Yellow Pages and other printed local business directories will remain viable marketing vehicles for years.

"Our Web site and monthly e-newsletters are occupying more of our time and investments, but print still has a place," says Frank Roberts, owner and self-proclaimed chief bottle washer for Brandon, Manitoba, Canada-based Eco Green. "Capturing top-of-mind awareness requires a multi-pronged marketing strategy."

Social networking sites and other digital marketing portals are "the weave of the future," says Priya Hutner, avid Facebooker and director of marketing for Longwood, FL-based Nanaks Landscaping. She, too, mixes her marketing bets, but mostly among the digital arena.

"The Web gives us a world of new marketing opportunities," Hutner says. "Just as important, all of these new digital tools make marketing much less of a gamble." LM
