Historical Note

The first course relating to agriculture economics was offered in 1906 when the Department of History and Economics was created. In 1916, the Department of Economics was established which included classes related to agriculture. In 1949, the Department of Agriculture Economics was created by merging the agriculture section of the economics department and the Farm Management Department.

Scope and Contents

The records consist of department administrative materials as well as reports and publications. There is material about the bean industry, creameries, and elevators. Also included are bylaws, financial information and questionnaires relating to cooperatives, exchanges, agriculture associations, and farm bureaus in Michigan. These are arranged by county and then alphabetically by name. The collection also contains photographs of images of cooperative creameries from around the state. There are studies with associated maps documenting farm demographics in Michigan, Minnesota, and Wisconsin.
