The Michigan Agricultural College Woman's Club was first organized in May 1903 and federated in May 1904 at the state level, in April 1919 at the county level, and in March 1922 at the general level. The first president was Maude Gilchrist, who was Dean of Women and of the Home Economics Division of Michigan Agricultural College. (From page 1 of the manuscript) In 1922, the club was renamed to the East Lansing Woman's Club. The club's motto is: "As you learn, teach; as you get, give; as you receive, distribute."

Scope and Content

This collection contains yearbooks from the Michigan Agricultural College Woman's Club, which was organized in 1903 and federated in 1904. These yearbooks date from 1907 until 1922, when the organization changed its name to the East Lansing Woman's Club. The yearbooks continue from 1922 until 2018. Each yearbook details the members, the officers, and the activities of each club meeting for the year. Later yearbooks also include past presidents and budgetary information. The collection also contains an unpublished eighty page manuscript about the history of the East Lansing Woman's Club written by Mae Belle McKune. Topics included are each year's discussion subject and membership, as well as a one paragraph synopsis of the club activity by year. Appended is a list of the club's presidents from 1903 to 1978.
