Biographical Note for William Roscoe Kedzie

William Roscoe Kedzie was born in Oberlin, Ohio on May 10, 1879, to William Knowlton Kedzie and Ella Marie Gale Kedzie. After the death of his father, Roscoe traveled with his mother and sister to Olivet, Michigan, where his mother was head of the Art Department at Olivet College. Roscoe and his family moved in with his grandfather, Robert Kedzie, who lived in Michigan Agricultural College's Faculty Row. At the age of 13, Roscoe published his own newspaper on campus, The Eagle. It started out as a tiny 2.5 by 3.5 inches double sided piece of paper and grew into a larger newspaper, which sold ad space for 1 cent per line. Roscoe reported on the campus news and gossip. Subscriptions were 1 cent per week or 25 cents for six months. Unfortunately, he had to cease publishing The Eagle to focus on his educational studies.

Roscoe graduated from Michigan Agricultural College (now Michigan State University) in 1899. He received his B.S. degree in divinity from Oberlin College in 1902, and his Doctor of Divinity from Olivet College in 1922. He married Ida Elsie Barton on August 31, 1897, and together they had three children. Roscoe served in pastorates at Vicksburg, Pontiac, and St. Johns, Michigan and Glen Ellyn, Illinois. He served as pastor of the First Congregation Church in Cleveland, Ohio for ten years. For seven years, he served as secretary of the Congregation Foundation for Education in Chicago. After retiring, he and his wife moved to Eaton Rapids, Michigan to live on a farm. His wife died on November 8, 1936. Sometime between 1937 and 1940, Roscoe married his second wife, Elsie Dean of Cleveland. On September 16, 1940, Roscoe suffered a heart attack and died outside in his garden.

Scope and Contents

The collection contains the book A Boy's View of Michigan Agricultural College in the 1890s. The book uses issues of The Eagle to look at life at Michigan Agricultural College (M.A.C., now Michigan State University) in 1892-1893. The Eagle was a small newspaper published by Dutton's father, Roscoe Kedzie, when he was a teenager living with his grandfather, Robert C. Kedzie, on the M.A.C. campus.
